UNIVERSITY OF MONTANA STUDENTS STUDY ABROAD

MISSOULA--

Local students attending The University of Montana-Missoula will study overseas during the 1995-96 academic year.

John M. Robinson, a geology major from Cortez, Colo., will spend the year in Sweden as an International Student Exchange Program participant. Justin Derkash, a business major from Glenwood Springs, Colo., will spend a year studying in Colombia through ISEP beginning spring semester 1996.

Liberal studies major Chris Henry of Jackson Hole, Wyo., will spend the academic year as an ISEP participant in the Netherlands.

Direct exchanges with international universities will send Japanese major Lisa Hjerpe of Attleboro, Mass., to Kumamoto University in Japan, and anthropology major Jonathan Moor of Avon, Conn., to Hangzhou University in China for the year.

Eighteen UM students will attend universities in nine countries as part of international exchange programs this academic year.
